Swaachhta hi Sewa :

'Swaachhta hi Seva' initiative. Translating to 'Cleanliness is Service,' this event epitomizes our commitment to both personal and collective responsibility for a cleaner and healthier environment. Our students came together to actively participate in this initiative, underscoring the belief that a small act of cleanliness can indeed be a profound service to society. The event was not just a one-time effort but a manifestation of our ongoing dedication to the principles of Swaachh Bharat Abhiyaan

Swaachhta hi Sewa under Bus Stand Cleaning

our students rolled up their sleeves to actively participate in the upkeep of our city's central bus stand. Beyond its immediate impact on cleanliness, this event significantly contributes to environmental well-being.

This event is a reflection of our college's dedication to environmental stewardship. The removal of litter, proper waste disposal, and a general emphasis on cleanliness are not only acts of service to our community but also acts of service to the environment.

Tree plantation Rally :

'Tree Plantation Rally.' In this event, our students took to the streets, not just to walk but to make a resounding statement about our collective responsibility towards the environment.

The rally wasn't just a procession of people; it was a dynamic demonstration of our commitment to a greener, healthier world. As our students marched, they carried with them not only banners and slogans but the collective spirit of environmental consciousness. The message was clear: planting trees is not just a task; it's a powerful act of shaping a sustainable future.

Tree plantation Awareness :

In this event, our students engaged in a meaningful tree plantation drive, demonstrating their commitment to being stewards of the environment. Beyond the physical act of planting trees, our goal was to cultivate awareness about the pivotal role trees play in sustaining life on our planet. Each sapling symbolizes not just a green addition to our campus but a living commitment to a healthier, more sustainable future.

Swachha Baharat Abhiya:

The cleanliness drive conducted in Umala village not only aimed at picking up litter but also at fostering a sustainable change in behaviour. Through active participation, our students sent a powerful message about the importance of a clean environment, not only for the immediate community but for the well-being of our planet.

Moreover, the event included a solemn oath-taking ceremony, where our students pledged to uphold the principles of cleanliness and be responsible stewards of the environment. This commitment goes beyond a single day of cleaning as it lays the foundation for a culture of cleanliness and environmental responsibility

Plogging day :

The 'Plogging Day' event. This event was not just about fitness or community engagement; it was a dynamic fusion of both, with a clear mission to contribute to environmental well-being. 'plogging' is a term derived from the combination of jogging and picking up litter ('plocka upp' in Swedish). Our students, on this day, laced up their sneakers, armed themselves with eco-friendly bags, and embarked on a jog with a dual purpose—to enhance personal fitness and to rid our surroundings of litter.

Sampoorna Swachhta Abhiyaan:

'Sampoorna Swachhta Abhiyaan.' Translating to 'Complete Cleanliness Campaign,' this event was more than just a cleanup effort; it was a holistic commitment to fostering cleanliness and environmental well-being.

Our students, faculty, and staff joined hands in this collective endeavour, engaging in a comprehensive cleanup drive that extended beyond mere litter removal. 'Sampoorna Swachhta Abhiyaan' aimed at creating a paradigm shift in our approach towards cleanliness—both in our immediate surroundings and in the broader context of environmental sustainability.

Collection of plastic :

'Collection of Plastic' event. In recognizing the pervasive impact of plastic on our environment, our students took up the mantle of responsibility to actively contribute towards its reduction.

This event wasn't just about gathering plastic; it was a conscious effort to address the environmental challenges posed by plastic pollution.

The act of collecting plastic not only cleans our immediate surroundings but also sends a powerful message about responsible waste management.

Tree Plantation at umala:

'Tree Plantation at Umala Village' event. In this concerted effort, our students ventured beyond our campus borders to contribute to the greenery and well-being of Umala Village.

Tree plantation is not just about putting saplings into the soil; it's a pledge to nurture life and safeguard our environment. Our students, with shovels in hand and a vision for a greener future, planted trees that will serve as a lasting testament to our commitment to environmental sustainability.

Collection Of Plastic Waste at Golani Market:

Collection of Plastic Waste at Golani Market' event. In recognizing the urgent need to address the menace of plastic pollution, our students took proactive steps to make a tangible difference.

This event was not merely a cleanup; it was a strategic move to address the environmental challenges posed by plastic waste. Golani Market, like many public spaces, often grapples with the adverse effects of plastic pollution. Our students, armed with determination and waste bags, set out to not only collect plastic but also to raise awareness about responsible waste disposal.

Tree Plantation at Police Ground:

the 'Tree Plantation at Police Ground' event. This collaborative effort signifies not only our commitment to environmental sustainability but also our students' proactive role as stewards of the environment.

In choosing the Police Ground as the venue for our tree plantation, our students have extended the reach of their green impact to a central community space. The act of planting trees is not just about adding greenery to the landscape; it's a dynamic step towards creating a more resilient and vibrant environment for everyone.

Municipal Corporation and Railway Station Waste Collection:

This initiative reflects not only their civic responsibility but also a proactive stance towards creating a cleaner and healthier environment.

In targeting both the Municipal Corporation and the Railway Station, our students have undertaken a significant responsibility in addressing the challenges posed by urban waste. This event is more than just a collection drive; it is a call to action, urging us to confront the issues of waste management and pollution head-on.

Plastic disposal collection :

a commendable initiative spearheaded by our college students—the 'Plastic Disposal Collection' event. In recognizing the pressing issue of plastic pollution, our students took proactive steps to address this environmental challenge through a focused and determined effort.

The event was not merely about collecting plastic; it was a strategic move to tackle the menace of plastic waste head-on. Plastics, with their non-biodegradable nature, have become a significant threat to our ecosystems. The students, through this initiative, have shown a commitment to mitigating this threat by actively participating in the proper disposal of plastic waste.

Tree Plantation:

This event is a twofold endeavour, symbolizing both environmental stewardship and community collaboration. By planting trees, our students are contributing to the fight against climate change, enhancing biodiversity, and fostering a greener landscape. Each sapling represents a commitment to the well-being of our planet and a step towards creating a sustainable and resilient ecosystem.

Moreover, the inclusion of tree donation in this event is a testament to the altruistic spirit of our students. It extends the benefits of this initiative beyond our immediate surroundings, allowing the positive impact to spread to different corners of our community. Through tree donation, our students are creating a legacy of growth and vitality that will endure for generations.
